Project Yet envisions a future in which no young person is left to navigate the transition to adulthood alone.

Through stable housing, mentorship, life skills development, and community connection, we empower young adults to move from vulnerability to belonging, from dependence to self-determination, and from surviving to thriving.

Project Yet is a 501c3 nonprofit.
We would love to have your support.

Youth Empowered to Thrive

OUR APPROACH

Project Yet provides both the structure and connection necessary for young adults aged 18 - 24 to move forward with stability and purpose. We serve individuals navigating housing instability, limited family support, and barriers to accessing consistent resources during a critical stage of development. A significant portion of the young adults we serve identify as LGBTQ+. Through housing, mentorship, workforce development, life skills training, and community-based programming, we support young people as they transition into independent adulthood.

The Project Yet House is a living, breathing extension of our mission.

For young adults without stable housing or consistent family support, the path to independence is often marked by crisis rather than opportunity. This challenge disproportionately affects LGBTQ+ individuals.

Because of the lack of family acceptance, displacement, food insecurity, and limited access to constant emotional and practical support, Project Yet exists to meet this gap by providing safe, stable housing, access to resources, and strengthened sense of belonging.

OUR MISSION

Empower young people to transition safely and successfully to adulthood through mentoring, skill building, coaching, and support so that today's young adults become tomorrow's leaders.

HOW TO HELP

- Sponsor a week or more of rent for the Project Yet House
- Donate cash or gift cards (grocery, gas, retail)
- Mentor a participant
- Offer jobs and job coaching
- Teach a workshop
- Refer a young adult to Project Yet
